

REGISTRY OF MONEYLENDERS

REGISTRAR'S DIRECTIONS NO. 1 OF 2016

1 These Directions are made pursuant to sections 26(1), 26(2)(b) and 26(2)(c) of the Moneylenders Act (Chapter 188), and rule 10 of the Moneylenders (Prevention of Money Laundering and Financing of Terrorism) Rules 2009. It has come to the attention of the Registrar that licensees have been doing the following:

- 1.1 Informing borrowers/potential borrowers that they can be granted only weekly loans because this is a “new law” by the Government.
- 1.2 Offering short-term loans of less than one month in duration, which are repeatedly “re-financed” or “renewed” such that borrowers do not repay any part of the principal or interest, but simply a 10% “administrative fee” repeatedly.
- 1.3 Splitting a single loan into numerous component parts such that when a borrower is unable to repay any component part of the loan on time, a late charge of $60 for each component is levied.

2 The Registrar's views on the above-mentioned acts are as follows:

- 2.1 The act referred to in paragraph 1.1 is clearly a false or misleading representation. If the representation induces any person to borrow money from the licensee, was made in an attempt to induce the person to borrow money from the licensee or to agree to terms on which money is or is to be borrowed, this may amount to an offence under section 27(a) of the Moneylenders Act.
- 2.2 Concerning the act referred to in paragraph 1.2:
 - 2.2.1 Licensees should not offer short-term loans to borrowers in the knowledge that the borrowers will not be able to repay any part of the principal or interest at the end of the term of the loan, and in the knowledge that the consequence is that the borrower will need to pay an “administrative fee” repeatedly to roll-over the loan, without making any payments which go towards reducing the principal or interest owed. In determining if a borrower will be able to meet the proposed repayment plan, licensees should take into account the borrower's income and assess if he is able to repay. For instance, a one-week loan which is higher than the borrower's weekly income is clearly not repayable.

2.2.2 Such conduct is undesirable and may be regarded as:

2.2.2.1 carrying on the business of moneylending in such a manner as to render the licensee unfit to hold a licence, which is a ground for the Registrar to refuse to renew a licence under section 7(1)(d)(v) of the Moneylenders Act; or

2.2.2.2 conducting the business of moneylending in an improper manner, which is a ground for the Registrar to revoke or suspend a licence under section 9(1)(a)(iv) of the Moneylenders Act.

2.3 Concerning the act referred to paragraph 1.3:

2.3.1 Licensees should not split the loans in the knowledge that the borrowers will not be able to make the instalment payments on time, and in the knowledge that the consequence is that the borrower will need to pay multiple late charges.

2.3.2 Where the splitting of a loan into numerous component parts serves no apparent or visible economic or lawful purpose to the borrower:

2.3.2.1 And it appears to be done chiefly for the licensee to benefit from charging the late payment fee multiple times (ie, one standard fee for each component that is late), this is undesirable and may be regarded as:

2.3.2.1.1 carrying on the business of moneylending in such a manner as to render the licensee unfit to hold a licence, which is a ground for the Registrar to refuse to renew a licence under section 7(1)(d)(v) of the Moneylenders Act; or

2.3.2.1.2 conducting the business of moneylending in an improper manner, which is a ground for the Registrar to revoke or suspend a licence under section 9(1)(a)(iv) of the Moneylenders Act;

2.3.2.2 It may amount to a deliberate restructuring of an otherwise single relevant loan into smaller transactions in order to evade the thresholds provided for in the Moneylenders (Prevention of Money Laundering and Financing of Terrorism) Rules 2009, and if a licensee does not aggregate such smaller transactions into a single loan for the purposes of rule 6(1)(a) read with rule

6(4), this may amount to an offence under rule 6(5) of the said Rules.

3 Where borrowers enter into loan agreements without understanding the consequences referred to in paragraphs 2.2.1 or 2.3.1, licensees may be regarded as having failed to comply with sections 19(1) and 19(2) of the Moneylenders Act, in failing to inform the borrowers of the terms and conditions of the loan. Licensees are reminded that, under rule 8(f) of the Moneylenders Rules, they must inform borrowers in writing of how the permitted fees will be computed and the circumstances under which they will be charged.

4 Before issuing any loans, licensees must provide a separate cautionary statement in writing to the borrower in the terms set out in Annex A. The title of the cautionary statement must be in all capital letters, red font, and a minimum size of Times New Roman 16 or its equivalent. If the borrower does not understand English, the cautionary statement must be explained to him in a language he understands. The borrower must acknowledge by his signature on the cautionary statement that he has read and understood it, or if he cannot read it, then that it has been explained to him and he has understood it.

5 Licensees are hereby cautioned that should they engage in any of the acts mentioned in paragraphs 1.1 to 1.3, and this comes to the attention of the Registrar, they will be investigated, and dealt with accordingly if any breaches of the relevant legislation are found. Licensees who engage of any of these acts knowing that they will mislead borrowers, cause borrowers to have to repeatedly pay administrative fees or cause them to pay multiple late fees, must cease such conduct immediately.

6 For the purposes of these Directions, the term “licensees” includes any licensed moneylender, and any director, partner, agent or employee of the moneylender.

7 These Directions take immediate effect.

Dated this 26th day of January 2016

- (b) Splitting one loan into two or more smaller loans with the intent of collecting more late fees:
